McArthurGlen has completed an expansion of its Designer Outlet Roermond in the Netherlands by 77,500 sq ft, making it the largest outlet centre in northern and western Europe.

With more than 370,000 sq ft of gross leasable space, Designer Outlet Roermond has doubled in size since it first opened in 2001, and now comprises 150 shops.

The new extension will be anchored by Burberry and among the occupiers in the 35 new shops are Desigual, True Religion and Calvin Klein.

Gary Bond, McArthurGlen's CEO of European development, said: "Designer Outlet Roermond is in a unique location in Europe, and with its growing success we are already under way with a fourth extension to the centre, adding a further 118,000 sq ft of gross lettable area in 2014."
